

PRIMARY PERSONA · THE LATENT BUYER

Aufa, the Interested Newcomer

Represents the largest survey cluster — FTI students aged 18–20 who are interested but have not yet transacted (5 of 8 respondents). Highest-value target: real demand, blocked only by friction and trust.

GOALS

- Find affordable second-hand electronics (laptop, accessories) without scrolling endless WhatsApp chats.
- Buy from someone she can trust on a campus she already belongs to.
- Reach a seller in one tap when something catches her eye.

FRUSTRATIONS

- Can't find buyers/sellers — listings are scattered and unsearchable in the WA group (top pain, 6/8).
- Afraid of being scammed or getting an item that doesn't match (4/8).
- No dedicated, organized place to browse by category.

WHAT EARNS HER TRUST

- A clear profile photo + real identity on the seller — the #1 trust signal (7/8).
- Ratings and reviews she can read from other buyers before chatting.
- A visible "Civitas FTI" tag confirming the seller is part of the campus.

BEHAVIOUR PROFILE

SURVEY EVIDENCE BEHIND THIS PERSONA

5/8 are "interested but have never transacted," 0/8 uninterested — demand is real and untapped. Discovery is the unanimous-leaning pain (6/8). Trust is driven by profile photo + identity (7/8) over campus-email verification (4/8). Need-based usage (4/8 "only when needed") means re-engagement (wishlist + notifications) matters.

SECONDARY PERSONA · THE ACTIVE SELLER

Daniro, the Repeat Trader

Represents the experienced minority who have already bought/sold informally (3 of 8).
Lower in count but high in value — they create the supply and the gamification loop the whole marketplace runs on.

GOALS

- Move items quickly and build a visible reputation as a reliable seller.
- Be recognised — climb a leaderboard, earn a seller badge/level.
- Manage listings from both phone and a desktop browser interchangeably.

FRUSTRATIONS

- Hard to surface his offers to the right buyers in a noisy WA group (discovery, 6/8).
- Fear of buyer-side scams on direct transfer deals (4/8).
- No system rewards consistent, trustworthy selling — effort goes unseen.

WHAT MOTIVATES HIM

- A leaderboard + badge tiers (Pemula → Terpercaya → Top Seller) as status reward.
- Accumulating ratings/reviews that compound into trust and more sales.
- Flexible payment by mutual agreement — COD or direct transfer.

BEHAVIOUR PROFILE

SURVEY EVIDENCE BEHIND THIS PERSONA

3/8 have transacted before — the supply side. Open feedback explicitly asked for a "leaderboard dan reward agar orang rajin berdagang" and the ability to "lihat ulasan orang lain." This persona justifies the gamification (leaderboard + badge tiers) and the public review system in the build.
